Travel and Lodging

Participants at the workshop are responsible for their own travel and lodging arrangements. Complete information will be sent to registrants and can be found on our Web site (<http://poynter.indiana.edu/tre/travel.html>).

Intensive tracks

Workshop participants will be assigned to one intensive track that will meet three times. Each track will have approximately 15 members and a facilitator. Meeting in such small groups will allow participants to get to know each other better, to shape the agenda for the discussion themselves, and to discuss a topic of interest in depth. Topics and facilitators:

- Ethical theory (Sandra Shapshay)
- Ethical issues in research with human subjects in biomedical research (Edward Goldman)
- Ethical issues in research with human subjects in social, behavioral, and humanistic research (Robert Crouch)

Registrants will rank order these topics and will be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis. We anticipate that most registrants will be assigned to their first or second choice.

Breakout sessions

Workshop participants will also be assigned to two breakout sessions, one on Wednesday and a different one on Thursday. The members of a breakout session will not necessarily be members of a given intensive track. Registrants will rank-order the following topics and be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis. The breakout sessions that are actually offered will depend on how many people sign up.

Wednesday breakouts

- Program and curricular development (Davis)
- Risk-benefit assessment in biomedical research (Crouch)
- Tactics and techniques for teaching research ethics (Pimple)

Thursday breakouts

- Oversight and administration of research (Wright)
- Selecting, creating, and using case studies in teaching research ethics (Hollowell)
- Tactics and techniques (repeat)

Networking Opportunities

We host an optional open house at the Poynter Center on Wednesday night. We will also make arrangements for an off-campus dinner on Thursday at a nearby restaurant. The cost, which should be in the range of $20-$25, is not included in the workshop fee.
